kempter7 - FEEL YOUR ENERGY

kempter7 is functional clothing developed in cooperation with health professionals, coaches, athletes and textile engineers. The product improves your performance thanks to a special hybrid knitted fabric in 3-D technology, in which a yarn reflecting the body's thermal radiation has been incorporated.

Made in Germany - Austrian Brand

Seven tips for boosting

Tip 1: Don't be dazzled - compare!

There are many kinds of sports clothing out there. Indeed, many promise the earth. But when it comes to functional clothing, it's worth looking beyond the obvious. Effective high-tech function has little to do with loud, garish colours.

So to create kempter7, we involved not just designers, but also sports medicine physicians, physiotherapists, textile engineers and of course athletes.

The result is pants and shirts that can do astonishingly more.

This is because we've taken a very detailed look at how your body moves during sporting activities.

So our number 1 tip is this: Don't be dazzled. Compare!

Tip 2: Reduce muscle vibrations.

In sports, pace, endurance and rapid changes of direction are essential. But to turn power into action, the muscle first has to move from its starting position to the power position in fractions of a second.

Normally, dynamic movements and abrupt stops result in tremendous oscillations of the muscles. kempter7 functional pants have a special, structured weave to reduce these vibrations, resulting in more power being available for targeted movements.

your power with function

Tip 3: Reflect your body's thermal radiation.

As can easily be seen with infra-red cameras, your body is constantly emitting radiant heat. These losses can have a negative effect on endurance and energy as heat escapes through conventional textiles. Our functional clothing is therefore made from Nilit Innergy®, a high-tech yarn we have developed ourselves that has permanently integrated minerals. These measurably reflect the terahertz radiation back towards your body, keeping it at the ideal "operating temperature". This encourages blood flow, oxygen uptake in the blood and lymphatic circulation while reducing lactic acid build-up.

Often, a pleasant tingling sensation means you can feel this function working.

Tip 4: Be aware of more proprioception for fast reactions.

Proprioception is the "feeling" of your own body's tissues. The muscles, tendons, connective tissue, organs and nerves are all involved. The more conscious you are of the parts of your body at that crucial moment, the more directly your power is released. The firm hold that kempter7 functional pants give your muscles has been created especially for this purpose.

Tip 5: Ensure the correct compression to avoid injuries.

During sporting activities, your body is often subjected to incredible stress, the potential consequences of which you are completely unaware of at the moment of reaction.

To avoid injuries caused by extreme stress, the anatomically positioned textile-knit bands used in kempter7 functional clothing support and stabilise the muscles and joints on the left and on the right. This is something that can otherwise only be achieved with tapes that relieve the muscles from above.

Tip 6: Actively supports preparation and regeneration.

Good functional clothing should not only be effective during training and competitions, but wearing it on the days before and after the exertion (including on trips to and from sporting events!) should in turn prepare the body's tissues well and promote their regeneration. kempter7 pants are designed to do just that. They stimulate better performance in advance, reduce muscle fatigue and prevent injuries or help any injuries that are sustained to be overcome more quickly. Athletes also report a positive effect on cellulite.

Tip 7: Establish the ideal body climate.

Other functional clothing can do this, too, or at least it should: take moisture away from the body, avoid odour development and keep the muscles warm and dry.

Thanks to anatomically precisely adapted cuts and the hybrid kempter7 system comprising various two-layer, hypo-allergenic 3D knits with radiation reflection, climate control is more effective with these pants and shirts.

kempter7 is functional clothing that convinces you the first time you wear it. Worn tightly next to the skin, it feels good, enhances your awareness of your body and accompanies and supports you in every situation. Athletes of all disciplines rely on kempter7, as do coaches, physiotherapists, people who spend a lot of time sitting or standing and groups of professionals in physically demanding jobs. Therapists regard kempter7 functional clothing as a useful addition in the treatment of athletic injuries and injuries resulting from accidents, as well as for various neurological conditions.
